SafetyCare Accepting Nominees for National Care-Giving Awards

EMTs, Home Health Aides and Health Care Facility Professionals Eligible for Trophy

READING, P.A. – May 28, 2008 – Nurses, doctors, emergency medical technicians and other caregivers are there for us when we need them. SafetyCare is looking to recognize the best of the best and is counting on their peers in the health care industry to nominate them for the annual Jack and Rosemary Gulati SafetyCare Award.

The award honors the outstanding contributions of health care professionals whose dedication, work ethic and selfless commitment have made a positive difference in the well-being of others.

Nominations will be accepted in three categories—“Emergency Medical Technician of the Year,” “Caregiver of the Year in Home Health Care” and “Caregiver of the Year in the Facility/Institutional Environment.” One award recipient in each category will receive a bronze statue sculpted in the shape of an eagle, symbolizing power, courage and lofty spirit, at a special awards ceremony to be held on September 20 at SafetyCare’s national emergency response center.

The national award is open to professionals in the U.S. and its territories. The selection committee will focus its efforts on identifying individuals in the three categories who demonstrate an exceptional level of caring for their patients or who have performed an act of heroism in the line of duty. For a nomination form, please contact Marty Steinberg by phone at 908-789-0700 or by email at martin@jaffecom.com.

“We began the award last year to emphasize the ‘care’ in SafetyCare,” said Michael Bodnar, SafetyCare’s general manager. “Our response center is staffed by trained EMTs and our client base includes long-term care facilities as well as at-home seniors, so we wanted to honor those who help us provide health services to so many of our customers.”

SafetyCare provides 24-hour safety and security monitoring for homes and businesses, including a personal emergency response system linked to their Reading, PA call center, staffed with trained EMTs. The company also handles emergency signals from wireless emergency call systems installed at assisted living facilities, hospitals and other care centers.
